LOCAL AND OTHER NOTES

BLACKFOOT TRIBE OF INDIANS KIND TO OUR RED ENEMIES.

THE SENSE of gratitude must be the right of every Indian, as among the first principles of our country. It is therefore important that such feelings should not be allowed to pass without being published. The Blackfoot tribe of Indians, who were formerly in a state of hostility to the whites, have now been peacefully living among them for several years. They have taken up their residence on reservations and lead a contented life.

Mrs. T. Watson, a clerk at the post office, is an active worker in the cause of charity.
